Petition HP-14-77
March 3, 2015

Explanation

The applicant has completed the restoration/rehabilitation approved in Part 1 – Preconstruction Application for the Historic Preservation Property Tax Exemption. The project meets the Secretary of Interior’s Standards for Rehabilitation and Guidelines for Rehabilitation Historic Buildings and the City of Gainesville’s Historic Preservation Rehabilitation and Design Guidelines. The building is located in the Northeast Residential Historic District.

Exhibit 1 contains the Part 1 Historic Preservation Property Tax Exemption application and the staff report with pre-construction backup and photographs approved by the Historic Preservation Board on January 6, 2015.

The renovations totaled $77,938.24 (see Exhibit 2). Photos are in Exhibit 3.

Staff inspected the completed work on February 9, 2015.

Project Description

The property is located at 712 NE 3rd Avenue. The contributing structures were built in 1924 (main house) and 1938 (carriage house) according to the Alachua County Property Appraisers Office. The property is zoned RMF5 and is approximately 0.26 acres in size. The buildings are contributing structures to the Northeast Historic District.

The applicant rehabilitated both the main house and carriage house. Rehabilitation included:

- Both Structures
 - Updated all electrical systems
 - Updated plumbing piping and fixtures
 - New HVAC systems
 - Removal of window A/C units
 - Lead paint abatement
 - Exterior paint
 - Siding repair as needed
 - Plaster repair as needed
 - Interior paint
 - New kitchen appliances
 - Restoration of original wood floor

- Main House
 - New lower kitchen cabinets to complement existing original cabinetry
 - New flooring in kitchen
 - Removed inappropriate elements from an earlier renovation in master bath and replaced with period appropriate elements
 - Removed exterior stairs to attic

Petition HP-14-77

Basis for Approval – Secretary of the Interior’s Standards for Rehabilitation

Section 25-61 et seq of the City Code of Ordinances (see Exhibit 3) authorizes ad valorem tax exemptions for historic properties. As part of its review, the Historic Preservation Board must determine whether “the proposed improvement is consistent with the Secretary of the Interior’s Standards for Rehabilitation and Guidelines for Rehabilitating Historic Buildings and is therefore an eligible improvement.” Staff has assessed the rehabilitation and finds that all work done was consistent with the Secretary of Interior’s Standards for Rehabilitation and Guidelines for Rehabilitating Historic Buildings, and are therefore eligible improvements.

Respectfully submitted,

Onelia Lazzari

OVERVIEW

The Historic Preservation Board (HPB) is an advisory board to the City of Gainesville's Commission composed of citizens who voluntarily, without compensation commit their time and expertise to the stewardship of historic resources in our community.

The HPB approval is a procedure which occurs for alterations, construction, restorations, or other significant changes to the appearance of an structure in Gainesville's Historic Districts which have an impact on the significant historical, architectural, or cultural materials of the structure and/or the district. The City's historic review guidelines are available online at planning.cityofgainesville.org and within the Land Development Code, Section 30-112.

After submission of an application, the Historic Preservation Planner prepares a written recommendation for the board meeting which addresses whether the proposed changes are compatible with the criteria of the SECRETARY OF INTERIOR'S STANDARDS FOR REHABILITATION and the City of Gainesville's HISTORIC PRESERVATION REHABILITATION AND DESIGN GUIDELINES. Once staff has prepared and completed the staff report, an Agenda of the proposed meeting and the staff report will be posted online approximately 3 to 5 days prior to the HPB meeting and can be found at planning.cityofgainesville.org - Citizen Advisory Boards - Historic Preservation Board.

The applicant and/or owner of the property should be present at the Historic Preservation Board meeting and be prepared to address inquiries from the board members and/or the general public. The HPB meeting is a quasi-judicial public hearing with procedural requirements. The review body may approve, approve with conditions, or deny projects. It is not necessary for owners to be present at the HPB meeting if your COA has been staff approved.

In addition to a Certificate of Appropriateness (COA), a building permit may be required for construction from the Building Department. This is a separate process with submittal requirements. Building permits will not be issued without proof of a COA and the Historic Preservation Planner signing the building permit.

After the application approval, the COA is valid for one year and null and void if construction does not begin within six months.

Please post the CERTIFICATE OF APPROPRIATENESS at or near the front of the building.

City of Gainesville Code of Ordinances Section 25-65

Sec. 25-65. - Procedure for obtaining tax exemption.

- (a) Application. An applicant (owner of record or authorized agent) seeking an ad valorem tax exemption for historic properties must file with the city manager or designee the two-part Historic Preservation Property Tax Exemption Application with "Part 1: Preconstruction Application" (Part 1) completed. In addition, the applicant shall submit the following:
- (1) A completed application for a Certificate of Appropriateness for the qualifying restoration, renovation, or rehabilitation.
 - (2) An application fee of not more than five hundred dollars ($500.00) to be determined by the city manager or designee based on the estimated cost of the work to be performed and the administrative costs to be incurred by the city in processing the application and monitoring compliance.
- (b) Review by property appraiser's office. Upon receipt of the preconstruction application, the city manager or designee will transmit the application to the Alachua County Property Appraiser's office, which will review and provide an estimate of the probable increase in the appraisal of the property to the applicant and the City. The applicant can withdraw the application within forty-five (45) days of receiving the estimate and be reimbursed for the filing fee.
- (c) Review by historic preservation board.
- (1) The City of Gainesville Historic Preservation Board (HPB) shall review Part 1 applications for exemptions. The HPB shall determine whether the property is an eligible property and whether the Part 1 proposed improvement is consistent with the Secretary of Interior's Standards for Rehabilitation and Guidelines for Rehabilitating Historic Buildings and is therefore an eligible improvement.
 - (2) For improvements intended to protect or stabilize severely deteriorated historic properties or archaeological sites, the HPB shall apply the following additional standards:
 - a. Before applying protective measures that are generally of a temporary nature and imply future historic preservation work, an analysis of the actual or anticipated threats to the property shall be made.
 - b. Protective measures shall safeguard the physical condition or environment of a property or archaeological site from further deterioration or damage caused by weather or other natural, animal or human intrusions.
 - c. If any historic material or architectural features are removed, they shall be properly recorded and, if possible, stored for future study or reuse.
 - d. Stabilization shall reestablish the structural stability of a property through the reinforcement of loadbearing members or by arresting material deterioration leading to structural failure. Stabilization shall also reestablish weather resistant conditions for a property.
 - e. Stabilization shall be accomplished in such a manner that it detracts as little as possible from the property's appearance. When reinforcement is required to reestablish structural stability, such work shall be concealed wherever possible so as to not intrude upon or detract from the aesthetic and historical quality of the property, except where concealment would result in the alteration or destruction of historically significant material or spaces.
 - (3) For applications submitted under the provisions of section 25-64, the HPB shall also determine that the property meets the standards set forth in that section.
 - (4) The HPB shall notify the applicant and the city commission in writing of the results of its review and shall make recommendations for correction of any planned work deemed to be inconsistent with the requirements for an eligible improvement.

- (g) Effective date of exemption. The effective date of the ad valorem tax exemption shall be January 1 of the year following the year in which the application is approved by the city commission and a historic preservation exemption covenant has been transmitted to the Alachua County Appraiser.
- (h) An applicant previously granted a historic rehabilitation tax exemption by the historic preservation board may undertake additional improvement projects during the exemption period, or following its expiration, and reapply for an additional historic rehabilitation tax exemption for such work. An additional ten-year exemption shall apply only to the additional improvement.
- (Ord. No. 950480, § 1, 8-28-95)

Historic Preservation Rehabilitation and Design Guidelines

The City of Gainesville, FL Historic Preservation Rehabilitation and Design Guidelines are based on the Secretary of Interior Standards for Rehabilitation, which have become the authoritative guideline for rehabilitation state:

Exterior Fabric

Horizontal wood siding is the predominant exterior finish of residential buildings in Gainesville's Historic Districts. Wood siding is a character defining feature of frame vernacular buildings and many of the late nineteenth and early twentieth century styles found in the state such as the Queen Anne, Colonial Revival, and Craftsman Bungalow. Important characteristics of wood siding which should be considered in its repair or replacement are: board size, width of exposure, length, and trim detail.

Probably the greatest threat to wood siding is the application of non-historic surface coverings such as aluminum and vinyl siding, stucco, and permastone. Application of these materials violates Standards 2 and 3. Standard 2 states that the removal or alteration of any historic material or distinctive architectural feature should be avoided when possible. Application of non-historic exterior finishes results in either the removal or covering of historical materials and details. Decorative trim around doors, windows, and under roof lines is frequently removed. Detailing of the wood itself, such as beveling or beading, is lost. Board width, length, and exposure are generally changed, thus, altering the scale and appearance of the building.

Standard 3 states that historic buildings shall be recognized as products of their time and those alterations that have no historical basis shall be discouraged. Aluminum, vinyl, and permastone are clearly non-historic materials and violate this standard. Artificial siding also frequently damages the fabric underneath. It can trap moisture and encourage decay and insect infestation. Furthermore, despite manufacturer's claims, artificial siding requires maintenance. All materials have a limited life span and vinyl and aluminum are no exceptions. Within twenty years the finish of these materials will begin to deteriorate and weather, requiring painting, repair, or replacement.

In cases where artificial siding is already in place, its removal is not necessary under the guidelines. An owner may retain the material or remove it. If, however, the material is removed, it must be replaced with historically appropriate materials in accordance with Standard 9.

Abrasive cleaning or paint removal are other threats to historic wooden siding and violate Standard 7. The proper method for paint removal is cleaning, light scraping, and sanding down to the next sound layer. If more intensive paint removal is required, the gentlest means possible should be used. Appropriate methods include a heat plate for flat surfaces such as siding, window sills and doors; an electric heat gun for solid decorative elements; or chemical dip stripping for detachable wooden elements such as shutters, balusters, columns, and doors when other methods are too laborious.

Harsh abrasive methods such as rotary sanding discs, rotary wire strippers, and sandblasting should never be used to remove paint from exterior wood. Such methods leave visible circular depressions in the wood; shred the wood; or erode the soft, porous fibers of the wood, leaving a permanently pitted surface. Harsh thermal methods such as hand-held propane or butane torches should never be used because they can scorch or ignite wood.

substitute material can be installed without damaging or obscuring the architectural features of the building; and (3) the substitute material can match the historic material in size, profile and finish so that there is no change in the character of the building.

5. The use of Portland cement should be avoided when repointing brick unless technical reasons demand its use.
6. Avoid using cleaners that damage masonry or leave chemical residue. Do not clean marble or limestone with acid cleaners. Do not use abrasive cleaning methods such as sandblasting.
7. Do not paint unpainted masonry.
8. Avoid using high-pressure water wash which can damage the brick.

PAINTING, TEXTURE AND COLOR

Paint colors are not reviewed by staff or the Historic Preservation Board. However, removal of lead-based paints and coatings used extensively before the 1970's requires special permits.

Paint colors, finishes, and decorative painting constitute important factors in defining the character of a historic building. Under Standard 2, painting a building that has never been painted, or removing paint from a building that has traditionally been painted, is never a recommended rehabilitation treatment. Either of these treatments can change a building's appearance to one that is at odds with its historic character. Likewise, when repainting a historic building that is already painted, a new color should generally be close to the original, as well as historically appropriate to the building and the historic district. Under Standard 5, decorative painting such as stenciling, graining, marbleizing, and trompe l'oeil are significant treatments and should be preserved during the course of rehabilitation.

Advisory guidelines are offered in Appendix 3: Historic Materials to property owners who are interested in painting their building historically appropriate colors. Because of frequent painting, few buildings in Gainesville exhibit original colors.

The best way to verify original colors is through paint analysis. A selection of books and articles are included in the bibliography for further assistance in choosing historically appropriate paint colors.

Recommended

1. Preserve painted and unpainted surfaces as they traditionally existed on a building.
2. Preserve and restore decorative painting such as stenciling, graining, marbling, and trompe l'oeil.
3. Choose color appropriate to the period and style of the building.
4. Inspect painted masonry to determine whether repainting is necessary.
5. Remove damaged or deteriorated paint only to the next sound layer using hand scraping prior to repainting.
6. Apply compatible paint coating following proper surface preparation.
7. Follow manufacturer's product and application instructions when repainting masonry.
8. Repaint with colors that are historically appropriate to the building and district.

and air-conditioning (HVAC) and other mechanical systems. Insensitive installation of mechanical systems can cause significant damage to historic fabric and alter the visual qualities of a building in violation of Standard 9. Installation should be accomplished in the least obtrusive manner possible and in the most inconspicuous location. In particular, protruding, through-the-wall or window air-conditioning units should be avoided under Standard 2.

Raised foundations, generous attic spaces, and existing chases and duct work found in many historic buildings provide ample space for new duct work, plumbing, and electrical lines. Landscaping or fencing can screen exterior mechanical systems such as heat pumps and transformers from view.

Recommended

1. Identify, retain, and preserve visible features of early mechanical systems that are important in defining the overall character of a building, such as radiators, vents, fans, grilles, plumbing fixtures, switchplates, and lights.
2. Protect and maintain mechanical, plumbing, and electrical systems and their features through cyclical cleaning and other appropriate measures.
3. Prevent accelerated deterioration of mechanical systems by providing ventilation of attics, crawl spaces, and ceilings so moisture problems are avoided.
4. Repair mechanical systems by augmenting or upgrading system parts, such as installing new pipes and ducts; rewiring; or adding new compressors or boilers.
5. Replacing in kind or with compatible substitute materials those visible features that are either extensively deteriorated or are missing when there are surviving prototypes such as ceiling fans, switchplates, radiators, grilles, or plumbing fixtures.
6. Install a completely new mechanical system if required for the new use so that it causes the least alteration possible to the building's floor plan, the exterior elevations, and the least damage to historic building material.
7. Install the vertical runs of ducts, pipes, and cables in closets, service rooms, chases, and wall cavities.
8. Install air-conditioning units if required by the new use in such a manner that the historic materials and features are not damaged or obscured.
9. Install heating/air-conditioning units in the window frames in such a manner that the sash and frames are protected. Window installations should be considered only when all other viable heating/cooling systems would result in significant damage to historic materials.

Not Recommended

1. Removing or radically changing features of mechanical systems that are important in defining the overall historic character of the building so that, as a result, the character is diminished.
2. Failing to provide adequate protection of materials on a cyclical basis so that deterioration of mechanical systems and their visible features results.
3. Enclosing mechanical systems in areas that are not adequately ventilated so that deterioration of the system results.
4. Replacing a mechanical system or its functional parts when it could be upgraded and retained.
5. Installing a replacement feature that does not convey the same visual appearance.

- decorative materials that accent interior features and provide color, texture, and patterning to walls, floors, and ceilings.
2. Protect and maintain masonry, wood, and architectural metals which comprise interior features through appropriate surface treatments such as cleaning, rust removal, limited paint removal, and reapplication of protective coatings.
 3. Protect interior features and finishes against arson and vandalism before project work begins, erecting protective fencing, boarding-up windows, and installing fire alarms systems that are keyed to local protection agencies.
 4. Protect interior features such as staircase, mantel, or decorative finishes and wall coverings against damage during project work by covering them with heavy canvas or plastic sheets.
 5. Install protective covering in areas of heavy pedestrian traffic to protect historic features such as wall covering, parquet flooring and panelling.
 6. Remove damaged or deteriorated paints and finishes to the next sound layer using the gentlest method possible, then repainting or refinishing using compatible paint or other coating systems.
 7. Repaint with colors that are appropriate to the historic building.
 8. Limit abrasive cleaning methods to certain industrial or warehouse buildings where the interior masonry or plaster features do not have distinguishing design, detailing, tooling, or finishes; and where wood features are not finished, molded, beaded, or worked by hand. Abrasive cleaning methods should only be considered after other, gentler methods have been proven ineffective.
 9. Evaluate the overall condition of materials to determine whether more than protection and maintenance are required, that is, if repairs to interior features and finishes will be necessary.
 10. Repair interior features and finishes by reinforcing the historic materials. Repair will also generally include the limited replacement in kind or with compatible substitute materials of those extensively deteriorated or missing parts of repeated features when there are surviving prototypes such as stairs, balustrades, wood panelling, columns; or decorative wall coverings or ornamental tin or plaster ceilings.
 11. Replace in kind an entire interior feature or finish that is too deteriorated to repair, if the overall form and detailing is still evident, using the physical evidence to guide the new work. Examples could include wainscoting, a tin ceiling, or interior stairs. If using the same kind of material is not technically feasible, then a compatible substitute material may be considered.
 12. Design and install a new interior feature or finish if the historic feature or finish is completely missing. This could include missing partitions, stairs, elevators, lighting fixtures, and wall coverings; or even entire rooms if all historic spaces, features, and finishes are missing or have been destroyed by inappropriate “renovations.” The design may be a restoration based on historical, pictorial, and physical documentation; or be a new design that is compatible with the historic character of the building, district, or neighborhood.
 13. Accommodate service functions such as bathrooms, mechanical equipment and office machines required by the building’s new use in secondary spaces such as first floor service areas or on upper floors.

13. Using destructive methods such as propane or butane torches or sandblasting to remove paint or other coatings. These methods can irreversibly damage the historic materials that comprise interior features.
14. Using new paint colors that are inappropriate to the historic building.
15. Changing the texture and patina of character-defining features through sandblasting or use of other abrasive methods to remove paint, discoloration or plaster. This includes both exposed wood, including structural members, and masonry.
16. Failing to undertake adequate measures to assure the preservation of interior features and finishes.
17. Replacing an entire feature such as a staircase, panelled wall, parquet floor, or cornice; or finish such as a decorative wall covering or ceiling when repair of materials and limited replacement of such parts are appropriate.
18. Using a substitute material for the replacement part that does not convey the visual appearance of the surviving parts or portions of the interior feature or finish or that is physically or chemically incompatible.
19. Removing a character-defining feature or finish that is not repairable and not replacing it; or replacing it with a new feature or finish that does not convey the same visual appearance.
20. Discarding historic material when it can be reused within the rehabilitation project or relocating it in historically appropriate areas.
21. Installing permanent partitions that damage or obscure character-defining spaces, features, or finishes.
22. Enclosing an interior stairway with fire-rated construction so that the stairwell space or any character-defining features are destroyed.
23. Creating a false historical appearance because the replaced feature is based on insufficient physical, historical, and pictorial documentation or on information derived from another building.
24. Introducing a new interior feature or finish that is incompatible with the scale, design, materials, color, and texture of surviving interior features and finishes.

- Remove the existing 150A electrical panel from the hallway and replace with a new 200A panel.
- Remove all existing electrical devices and knob and tube wiring.

- Supply power to new A/C by electric service and AHU in attic.
- Install a receptacle and light in attic space.
- All wiring in home will be brought up to current codes on wiring type, devices, and placement.
- Holes will need to be cut around residence to allow for new wiring. Patching and painting will need to be done by others. There will be approximately 20-40 depending on final placement of devices and existing wall construction.
- City of Gainesville Electrical Permit and required inspections.

Our lump sum price to complete this scope of work is $10,550.00 (Ten thousand five hundred and fifty dollars).
