Question applies to Regional Transit System Advisory Board

Why are you interested in serving on the Regional Transit System Advisory Board?

I love public transportation in any and all forms, from light rail to bus systems. I also believe that the freedom of mobility is an undeniable human right so intrinsic to the human experience, especially in 2021, that a robust, government-operated network provides the most benefit to the most residents in serving mobility wants and needs. I also believe that now is the best time to consider important and potential needs of this network's future, given the ever-increasing possibility of climate refugees from Florida's coastal communities resettling in more centralized areas of the state such as Gainesville.

Why are you interested in serving on the Regional Transit System Advisory Board?

I've become a regular user of the RTS as a freshman UF student, both on campus and to it in the mornings. My experience with mass transit, however, started much before I began to attend the University of Florida. I am fortunate enough to have done a lot of traveling before the pandemic, which included visiting big cities and making use of their transit systems, allowing me to become familiar with each and analyze it comparatively. An urban transit network can tell a lot about the city in which it operates. Mass transit--especially electrified vehicles--has been an interest of mine as long as I've known, and I am aware of the role the RTS plays for those who cannot maintain ownership of a car or choose not to for practical or ecological reasons. However, I also frequently note shortcomings of the RTS in its current state and, as a member of the Advisory Board, help make it better for everyone in a changing climate and society.
