My name is Pierce Jacobson, Stephanie Pierce's son. We walked yesterday through part of the property that hopefully will be considered for conservation. I put together multiple pdf files that I will attach to this email below. The files include everything from the current tax collector information, current property appraisal value information, multiple outlines of the entire 91.66 acres of parcel 07142-000-000 from the Alachua County GIS mapping application. The property directly across Rocky Point Road bordering the solar panels is the other part of parcel 07142-000-000 as you will see in the maps. I also included a couple GIS maps of the parcels with flood zones, wetlands and strategic ecosystem overlays which cover a large part of the parcel. I'm including a map of all the Alachua County Strategic Ecosystems which come with a site # and rating. The Serenola Forest, site # 46 covers a large part of the Henderson property of interest. There are two other pdf files I will include. The Biodiversity Matrix Map tool that is on the FNAI (Florida Natural Areas Inventory) website allows you to pick an area of interest and it will provide a report including a site map and list of species and natural communities by occurrence status: Documented, Documented-Historic, Likely, and Potential. The other file is from the IPaC (Information for Planning and Consultation) location resource list provided by the U.S. Fish and Wildlife Service website and it generates a list for the area of concern of species and other resources such as critical habitat and migratory birds that are known or expected to be on or near the project area. I know this might be more than you needed but I wanted to make sure you had all the information possible to make a good case for why this property should be considered for conservation. It was a pleasure meeting you and I'm glad your trying to save some of the last critical habitat between the city of Gainesville and Paynes Prairie. This area is basically all that's left on this section of Paynes Prairie that provides a critical buffer and wildlife corridor from the City
